Hand Hygiene

Hand Hygiene

Good hand hygiene is essential to stop germs spreading and causing infections, and patients in hospital are particularly vulnerable.

At Lancashire Teaching Hospitals NHS Trust, we are determined to minimise infection risks and we are asking all staff, patients and visitors to ensure strict hand hygiene at all times.

We are asking visitors to:

- Clean your hands when you arrive on the ward with either soap and water or alcohol hand gel which is available on entrance and exit to the wards
- To clean your hands before and after touching patient surroundings
- To wash your hands after using the toilet and before touching food or carrying out any patient care
- Please try and avoid visiting patients if you have a cough, cold, diarrhoea and/or vomiting or any other infections, ensure you are 48 hours clear of any symptoms
- Encourage or help with the hand hygiene needs of the patient you are visiting
