What is this leaflet about?

This leaflet is about health appointments you might have at home using your computer or phone.

This leaflet tells you how you can make the appointments work better for you.

These appointments might be with a doctor, nurse, mental health person, or other health person.

Making the appointment

Tell the person you make the appointment with if you want a phone call or a video call.

Ask them what time the health person will call you.

Tell them if you do not have a quiet and private place for the call.

Phone calls and video calls are good if you only need to talk to the health person.

Tell the person you make the appointment with if you need any tests or you want to come see the health person instead.

Getting ready

You can practice having a call on the phone or computer with someone you know.

Ask them for help with the appointment if you need it.

Think about what you need to tell the health person.

Think about the questions you want to ask them.

In the appointment

Sit in a quiet and private place.

Ask the health person for help if you are not sure of something.

Ask them to slow down if they are going too fast.

Before you say goodbye, ask them what you must do next.

How we made this leaflet

We are called Traverse. We worked with Healthwatch, National Voices and PPL.

We spoke to people about the phone calls, video calls and texts that they had with doctors, nurses, and mental health staff.

You can read the big report about this on our website. It does not have easy words.
